

ANCHORSPLASH

On Oct. 7, Delta Gamma held their annual philanthropy, Anchorsplash. The money raised at this event benefited the Service for Sight foundation, which helps those who are blind or visually impaired. The Anchorman competition to be on the Delta Gamma composite was also held after the Anchorsplash event; both were on Flavet field from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

This year, the event was changed to an outdoor water relay race. The teams consisted of six members who competed in a tag-team relay with each member completing one part of the relay. Teams were kept track of with numbered T-shirts that were switched off between each member of the team, like a baton.

When asked why Delta Gamma decided to change Anchorsplash this year, sophomore Ariel Leighton said, "I think that as a chapter we saw room for improvement in our philanthropy, so we decided to give Anchorsplash a new and improved look and make it more interactive with both the fraternities and sororities."

The overall winners were Alpha Tau Omega in first place, Phi Delta Theta in second place, and Phi Kappa Tau in third place. The anchorman competition, held afterwards, consisted of members of Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Zeta Beta Tau, Theta Chi and Alpha Tau Omega. The final winner was Michael Dallesandro of Theta Chi.
